

One school day the two friends Rad and William go outside for recess. Then they see their friends playing football. So they go over and ask if they can play but their friends said "no you can't play only were playing".

Then the recess bell rang and the two friends ran to the line and their friends pulled them back and they made Rad and William fall. Then their friends got to the lunch line first so, Rad and William had to go in last. Then the line got stoped by the second graders. After we got in the lunch room we sat with the same friends who bullied us then we asked why they were bullying us."They said we're not bullying you we just don't want you to play our game with us". "Then why did you pull us back on the concrete so you could get in the lunch line ". "Because we needed to get in line duh". "Well you shouldn't pull us on the concrete that's not nice" . " Well we don't care". "Well you should". "But we don't". "When we get back in the classroom I'm telling the teacher". When they were in the hallway they thought about if their friends would still be mean to them . So when they got back to the classroom they told their teacher. So their friends got in trouble. The teacher said they had to let us play in their game. So they let them. And they were nice to each other for the rest of the year football together all year. And they didn't fight ever again because if they did they would get in big trouble. And at the end of the day they would count up their points and see who won. You didn't get mad at won and they didn't argue. And they never got in trouble again in football.

The end.
